Continuation of 11. does NOT place the application in condition for allowance because:

Regarding claims 15-17, applicant contends that the examiner's final rejection of claim 15 using the Suga reference is improper because applicant's invention is directed toward producing a single file with image and sound information, while Suga is directed towards producing three separate files for each of the image, sound, and relationship data. However, as mentioned in the "Response to Arguments" section in the final rejection, the claim language is sufficiently broad enough so that the "multimedia data file consisting of digital image and sound information" does not have to be the captured image and sound information. As correctly pointed out by the applicant in the after-final response mailed on September 15, 2005, the map file consists of an image object index (204) and a sound object index (206). These two indexes serves as the "digital image and sound information" as stated in the claim. Therefore, the map file is interpreted to be the multimedia data file consisting of digital image and sound information. For these reasons, the final rejection from the previous action will be maintained.
